

SEEDY1 NUCLEIC ACIDS FOR MAKING PLANTS HAVING CHANGED GROWTH CHARACTERISTICS

ABSTRACT

The present invention concerns a method for modifying the growth characteristics of a plant relative to corresponding wild type plants, comprising modifying expression in a plant of a seedy1 nucleic acid and/or modifying the level and/or activity in a plant of a seedy1 protein. The invention also concerns novel constructs and novel seedy1 nucleic acid and protein sequences.